QA Automation

ABOUT

I'm a highly motivated person looking to contribute to building and testing software. I've made my initial steps into the tech world by pursuing a Master's in Management and Information Technology. Throughout my years of study, I gradually built a relationship with my responsibilities regarding organization and time planning to complete tasks and projects efficiently.

I've made my first actions towards becoming a QA by self-exploring and educating myself on HTML, CSS, Javascript, and Git. Besides these technologies, I learned how clients and servers communicate, which helped me get a better overview and helped me understand how software development works. After learning these basics, I spend some time exploring the project management side of software by learning Jira and Agile.

After learning coding fundamentals, I attended the QA Automation Testing course organized by Academy387. I had a chance to learn writing test cases, the basics of C#, and the Selenium testing framework. This course was my first real-world experience as we worked on writing automation for the Academy387 website. After finishing course, I spent time learning Cypress on Udemy and other learning resources. To put my skills into work, I've built E2E tests for well-known blogging platforms.

I'm looking for a first internship or a job where I can put my skills to work and craft my skills to become a better QA. Besides Selenium, I want to spend more time learning other testing frameworks (Cypress) and web development technologies such as React JS.
